135th Annual Meeting

Addressing the congregation on May 16, I said that although our institution may be old in years, our lay and professional leadership always bring excellence to our members with a fresh perspective. I am thrilled that we are living up to our leadership culture of respecting tradition and encouraging innovation.

The Sanctuary

Task Force and our clergy have made Shabbat at PAS the focus of our congregational life. Under their guidance, our services are lively, relevant, and moving. Our Shabbat programming is robust, from musical preludes and conversation before Kabbalat Shabbat to late afternoon study for parents and teens with Rabbi Cosgrove. Shabbat at PAS may offer Friday evening dinners, discussions on Israel, parashah study, family services, study with visiting scholars, and singing with Cantor Schwartz. The strength of our community is evident every Shabbat. We encourage each of you to find the gateway that is right for you and to make Shabbat at PAS a habit for yourself and your family.

One of the most visible innovations this past year was the High Holiday Family Service for families with Kindergarten through 7th grade children, with close to 300 participants on Yom Kippur. Last year's experiment will become a tradition in the fall.

Another new initiative is the Congregational School Visioning process. With a leading educational consultant and participation by the community, we identified five key focus areas. We are looking forward to the implementation of this vision. (See p. 20.)

Since the first congregational trip to Israel about 15 years ago, Travel with PAS has continually grown because it not only widens education but also deepens community bonds. This past year saw an adult learning trip to Prague and Budapest and a Bnei Mitzvah trip to Israel. We have a young family trip to Israel in June and a Women's Poland Trip in late October. In February there will be a Civil Rights Mission to the South. We recently announced the December 2018 Congregational Trip to Israel, celebrating Israel at 70 and PAS at 136! This trip will have multiple tracks that will appeal to all of our congregational demographics from young families and bnei mitzvah to teens, college, young adults, and adult learners. Each track will have a unique itinerary and all will join together for a community Shabbat. (See p. 24.)

Consistent with our goal of meeting members where they are and our commitment to being inclusive while remaining true to our Conservative traditions, we have formed an Interfaith Families Committee. The committee is working on educational initiatives, developing pathways to conversion, and studying best practices in serving the needs of interfaith couples and families.

Within our Caring Network we have launched an initiative called "What Matters," which creates individualized advance care planning discussions with Jewish values for our members. The Caring Network continues to support the homebound and those with serious illness or injury, comfort the bereaved, and welcome new babies. (See p. 11.)

I cannot end without mentioning fundraising. We deeply appreciate the community's incredible generosity. The ingenuity and dedication of our lay and professional development team has resulted in our continuing to reach new heights in our annual giving even during a capital campaign. (See p. 4.) Our Kol Nidrei appeal generated a record $2.9 million from nearly 1,100 families. Over 300 people celebrated our community at the Gala, a warm, fun evening that generated over $330,000 to support our synagogue.

In closing, I want to thank all of the lay and professional leaders who put their time, talent, and creative thinking into making this a vibrant community. In all that we do, our focus remains on the PAS culture of one-on-one connection, caring, kindness, and warmth that is now going on 136 years. The other Officers and I look forward enthusiastically to continuing to serve as we all – lay leaders, clergy, staff, and members – strive together to enhance Park Avenue Synagogue's unique position in our lives as a Kehillah Kedoshah, a sacred community.

FROM CANTOR SHIRA LISSEK

Read Torah or Haftarah, lead part of a service, or blow shofar on the High Holidays

Over the 20 years that I have been teaching, I have seen over and over again how being involved in reading Torah or Haftarah, leading part of a service, or blowing shofar can have a profound impact on a person's connection to Judaism and community. Though learning and practicing the Hebrew and the trope may seem mechanical, the preparation often leads to a spiritual experience. Reading from the Torah or participating in another way on the High Holidays provides a personal and intimate experience within the large community service. With a bit of dedication and time, you'll be amazed that you too are able to participate in this way. There are still openings for the coming High Holiday season.

If you are interested, please contact Cantor Lissek at pspiro@pasyn.org or x115 to get started..

High Holiday Basics

We look forward to the High Holidays, beginning with Erev Rosh Hashanah on Wednesday, September 20. We will again conduct services at our Fifth Avenue location as well as in the Sanctuary and Lower Level on 87th Street, which will be reserved seating only. No tickets will be required for Erev Rosh Hashanah and Yizkor services. To ensure that every PAS member has seats for the High Holidays, we ask that you purchase guest tickets only for your immediate family members, including children above the age of 23. All guest tickets are for admission at the Fifth Avenue service only.

PAS will again offer Family Services on the mornings of the first day of Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. These services will offer a welcoming atmosphere for younger children, as well as their siblings and adult family members.

More information will be coming throughout the summer. Tickets will be mailed to members in good standing in early September.

Questions? Please contact Rachel Benichak, Membership Manager, at 212-369-2600, x195 or at rbenichak@pasyn.org.

CAPITAL CAMPAIGN IMPACT: OPENING OF THE LIFELONG LEARNING CENTER

What a difference a year makes!

As summer begins, we continue to be A Synagogue in Action: Building the Future! The PAS professional staff and lay leadership are hard at work preparing for the opening and dedication of our new Lifelong Learning Center.

If you walk past our new building at 11 East 89th Street, you will see the exterior signs of the progress made by the contractors and craftsmen who have been working hard on every detail of the physical construction over the past year. At the same time, plans and processes are being put in place inside the walls to help ensure a seamless transition to this new home for education at PAS. With move-in slated for August, the “89th Street Transition Team,” a multi-departmental staff team of educators and administrators led by Beryl Chernov and Liz Offenbach, began meeting regularly over the winter to plan for staffing, scheduling, programming, supplies, and so much more.

Sunday, September 10 at 4:00 pm
Please save the date for a festive, outdoor, community-wide celebration at 11 East 89th Street.

The various education teams have put a lot of effort into making sure lifelong learning programs will take advantage of the new, modern, state-of-the-art facilities. Young Family Education is developing plans for their use of the new building for our youngest learners. The Congregational School team is going through every classroom, closet, and bookcase to pack up and prepare for their move to the new home for nearly 500 students. At the same time, they are enhancing the Congregational School curriculum, guided by this past year’s Congregational School Visioning effort. Teen and Youth leadership has also been hard at work imagining all the ways they can use the new space, as has the 20s and 30s team. as has the 20s and 30s team. Rabbi Cosgrove, Rabbi Zuckerman, Rabbi Savenor, and Beth Levick are reimagining our premier Adult Learning programming, in partnership with the Adult Education Committee. They are considering key themes, timely topics, and innovative kinds of programming that the new spaces at the Lifelong Learning Center make possible. Our many Arms and Committees will also find vibrant, warm, welcoming, and technologically up-to-date spaces for their meetings and events.

To celebrate this milestone for our community, Jean Bloch Rosensaft and Susan Silverman are collaborating closely with Rabbi Cosgrove and Cantor Schwartz to plan a meaningful, multi-generational, congregation-wide celebration to dedicate our new Lifelong Learning Center. Save the date for this festive, interactive, outdoor, community-wide, multi-generational celebration at 11 East 89th Street on Sunday, September 10 at 4:00 pm. We hope you and your families and friends will plan to join us as together we dedicate our beautiful new building and embark on new beginnings for our community! We wish you a restful summer and look forward to welcoming you to the Lifelong Learning Center in September!

Thank you again to the many of you who have donated to this effort. Our community is so very grateful for your support. If you have not yet donated, please help us achieve even broader participation by making a donation. No gift is too small. You can make a donation by visiting pasyn.org/capitalcampaign or by contacting Laura Yamner at lyamner@pasyn.org or 212-369-4900, x138.

Transformed by the Shofar

EMILY ABELOW

There are certain melodies and lyrics that transcend the differences between people and transport them to a place where those differences do not matter. These sounds are portals. Hearing a Bruce Springsteen song brings together a farmer from Kansas and a lawyer from New York. The National Anthem brings together Democrats and Republicans. The shofar brings Jews together.

The shofar has been blown as part of Jewish religious practices since 1800 BCE. It ushers in the New Year and connects Jews around the world. No matter where they are from and no matter what their beliefs are, Jews know and respect the sounds of the shofar.

I never could have imagined that my decision to learn to play the trumpet at the age of ten would one day connect me to this rich history. All I knew was that I wanted a solo in our fifth grade band performance and there were too many kids who played the violin for me to compete against, so I chose the trumpet instead. I had to learn how to pinch my lips and cheeks together so I could blow into the mouthpiece correctly. Once I had that down, I was on the road to a solo. Little did I know that I was also on the road to something much bigger.

I finally got a solo, but it did not include playing the trumpet. I was asked to blow the shofar on Rosh Hashanah. Most portals take us by surprise. We do not realize we have been pushed through one until we are on the other side. I did not understand the profound impact that blowing the shofar would have on my life, the lives of others, and my congregation until after that first Rosh Hashanah.

I have blown the shofar on every Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur since seventh grade. I was not very religious before that, and I am still not very religious, but the appreciation I have for religion and my role at my synagogue has grown immensely. I see the changes that have occurred in myself each year, as I understand my position more and more. I was a child who used her trumpet skills to blow the shofar; I have become an adult who continues the traditions of my ancestors.

Not only have I experienced a transition because of this portal, but I also see a transformation among the other worshippers, mainly the women. Like many other positions in Judaism, the shofar blower has historically been male. I am the first woman to blow shofar at my synagogue. The weight of that fact does not escape me. Women of all ages congratulate me and shake my hand and I am proud of myself for representing them all. This portal has allowed me to break the singular mold of men blowing the shofar and create a new pluralistic mold where women can do it as well.

The effects of sounding of the shofar reach even further, to encompass the entire congregation. I could have never imagined myself having an impact on an entire community, but I hear the portal doors opening each time I blow the shofar. The sound transports the congregation from this year into the next. It connects each individual to Judaism. When the shofar sounds, everyone becomes one, listening to the same sound as our ancestors heard thousands of years ago.

The shofar sounds are transformative, breathtaking, and uniting. Each note unlocks a portal. This portal can take us wherever we want to become whatever we want. It has brought me through my transition from a child to an adult. It has enabled me to affirm religious beliefs that I did not have before. It has made me realize that my actions can have an impact on others. When I wanted the trumpet solo in fifth grade, all I thought about was myself, and how I wanted to be in the spotlight. Now I do not think about myself. I think about all the people who have watched me over the years and supported me. Sounds truly do create portals that bring people together.

A Journey of the Heart and Mind

The Florence Melton School of Adult Jewish Learning is marketed as “A Journey of Heart and Mind.” For Ellen Heller it has truly been such a journey.

Ellen joined the PAS two-year Melton core program in fall 2014 at the encouragement of her friend PAS member Robin Taubin. Ellen was delighted to be learning and became engaged in PAS beyond Melton. She and her husband Larry joined the congregation in 2015. In February 2016, after a period of illness, Ellen calmly informed me that she would be moving to Los Angeles temporarily in order to receive a heart transplant. She was disappointed that she would not be able to finish the Melton year. But she could! We arranged with the West Valley Consortium to transfer Ellen. As she waited for a new heart, she continued her studies with an incredible community of learners, who quickly became friends and a support system. Larry, who had not been interested in Melton, began to participate too. The Hellers attended services and Torah classes at Valley Beth Shalom and met socially with their study buddies – all the while livestreaming services and programs at PAS. After graduating the core program, the Hellers were eager to continue learning in the fall, but they didn’t know where they would be.

On September 20, the Hellers received the call that Ellen’s heart transplant was scheduled for the following day. After her surgery, they enrolled in a 20-session Melton Bereshit I and II graduate course, and chose to stay in California beyond Ellen’s three-month recovery in order to finish it.

In April 2017, Ellen and Larry returned to NYC, where I was thrilled to see the healthy, happy, energetic woman I met in 2014! Ellen started the Melton journey to engage her mind. Along the way she ended up with a new heart, two new communities of friends, and a wealth of new knowledge.

Jul 12, 19, 26; Aug 2 | 7:00–8:45 pm | Dr. Wendy Zierler

S.Y. Agnon (1888–1970), the first and only Hebrew writer to receive the Nobel Prize, remains the most important prose writer in the Modern Hebrew literary canon, but precious few American Jewish readers are acquainted with his work. Using newly available annotated translations from the Toby Press, this four-session course will focus on Agnon's diverse body of short fiction, which has been compared to the work of both Franz Kafka and Rebbe Nachman of Bratzlav. Register now; this class is likely to fill.

Cost: $110/members; $160/general

Dr. Wendy Zierler is Sigmund Falk Professor of Modern Jewish Literature and Feminist Studies at HUC in New York.

Music for Social Change: A Generation of Jewish Singer-Songwriters who Changed America. Some fifty years ago, stellar Jewish musicians reinvented American music, reshaped American culture, and revolutionized our very consciousness. In an era when culture and politics joined forces to initiate a series of social changes, a number of young singer-songwriters drew on the traditions of American folk music, Broadway's Tin Pan Alley, and the new Rock 'n' Roll to create the soundtrack for the new age dawning. We still listen to this music today, and it still moves us as it did in the 1960s. But do Bob Dylan, Paul Simon, and Leonard Cohen represent "Jewish" music?

Dr. David E. Kaufman is a scholar and teacher of American Jewish history whose first book, Shul with a Pool: The "Synagogue-Center" in American Jewish History, established him as a leading historian of American Judaism and Jewish communal life. He has served as a professor on the faculty of Hebrew Union College (HUC) in Los Angeles and Hofstra University on Long Island, and currently teaches on the New York campus of HUC.

Beth Styles is a producer, composer, musician, and vocalist who directs a multifaith choir in Stamford, CT and serves as Artist in Residence at Temple Sinai of Stamford. Beth collaborates with houses of worship, clergy, and leadership to produce compelling multifaith events and creates arts programs for people living with dementia. A writer/arranger of Jewish liturgical music, Beth is one of the winners of the 2016 Shalsholet award for new Jewish music.

Through the lens of sports, On The Map presents a much broader story of how one team captured the heart of a nation amidst domestic turmoil and the global machinations of the Cold War. Stay after the film for a conversation with Jeff Bukantz.

ANNUAL PAS ZAYIN CLASS
EXHIBITION

Capturing Judaism: Embracing Curiosity, Community, and Culture

Through August

Each year students in our Zayin (Grade 7) class have the option of taking a photography elective. Combining arts and experiential education through the universal medium of photography, this class provides learners an entry point to Jewish study and skill development. The annual exhibition of their work is an opportunity for them to share their voice with others. This year, Zayin students discussed and illustrated important Jewish values through their photography.

Torah

We study Torah to remember the Jewish People's stories and learn life lessons from it. We protect our Torahs in the ark in our synagogues. They shine and reflect back our image; the image that God created us in—in the likeness of God.

Learning is one of the most essential sources for fueling Judaism. Teachers can be the most important keepers of Jewish religion. Jamie taught me the Hebrew alphabet. Unknowingly, she was instrumental in directing me on my path to Jewish learning.

FIFTY YEARS AGO AT PAS

June 1967 – The Six-Day War

In the weeks preceding and the months following the Six-Day War, Rabbi Judah Nadich delivered impassioned sermons describing his fears as the Middle East crisis escalated and his pride at what he hoped was its resolution. On May 27, Rabbi Nadich told the congregation:

The sputtering powder keg of the Middle East seems about to explode . . . Will this be a war marked for the first time by ICBMs – Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles – with atomic warheads? Will it be a thermonuclear war with atomic fallout? And will it result in the devastation of the earth? And the end of human history?

On Shabbat morning, June 3, just hours before war broke out, Rabbi Nadich said urgently that Israel was readying itself for “external aggression.” The Rabbinical Assembly had met in Washington, DC the previous week and had spent much of the convention discussing what rabbis and American Jews could do to support Israel in the weeks ahead. By the following Shabbat, June 10, the Six-Day War had been launched and concluded. On that date, Rabbi Nadich’s voice was more at ease, but it was clear that his concerns regarding the stability of the region and whether a lasting peace would be achieved were unresolved.

Two weeks later, on June 24, the weekly Torah portion was Sh’lah L’kha, the story of the twelve scouts sent by Moses to explore the land that the Children of Israel were to enter. Alone among the scouts, Joshua and Caleb expressed confidence that the Israelites would succeed in settling the land: The Lord is with us – do not fear them – do not fear the foe. Rabbi Nadich took up from there:

The world was convinced but a few weeks ago that the people of Israel would be slaughtered. Even we, the Jews of America, we were seized by great fear for the Jews of Israel. They did not want war. But if war would come, they were convinced that they would win. They would have to win; for them there was no alternative. And to the amazement of the world and to our own sheer joy, they did win . . . and finally, after 2,000 years, the Jews have come home.

On the second day of Rosh Hashanah, October 6, Rabbi Nadich highlighted the exultation felt by Jews at the June victory in “The Effects of a Miracle.”

Every Jew felt the bond of destiny linking him with the Jews of Israel . . . suddenly Torah and prophecy and tradition came alive and we realized that the Bible is not a closed book. It is still being written.

Rabbi Nadich’s five sermons as well as other relevant recordings are posted at pasyn.org/shapiroaudioarchive. Please enjoy this remarkable piece of PAS history, and write us at shapiroarchive@pasyn.org to tell us your thoughts about the archive.

Report on the Congregational School Visioning Task Force

JENNIFER STERN GRANOWITZ, DIRECTOR

As a result of the work of our Congregational School (CS) Visioning Task Force, we will start implementing new components in our CS program in September. Over the past year, our educational consultant conducted interviews with clergy, educators, and families and we hosted many focus groups this past winter with well over 100 parents and students attending. We also heard from congregational leaders, CS faculty, and clergy about the topics they consider important in educating our students. Lastly, we spoke with a variety of congregational schools across the country to better understand trends and best practices.

Our consultant, Michele Levin from Gestaltworks, helped us synthesize the data we collected with a thoughtful and organized approach. Important themes emerged, and we worked closely with the clergy, the CS education team and the Board's CS Education Committee to transform these themes into five strategic areas of focus. The education team will begin to address the first four focus areas this summer, and will initiate implementing them in the coming school year. The fifth area is a long-term goal that we hope will develop in the coming years.

1. Enhancing core curriculum scope and sequence

2. Strengthening Hebrew reading to enable learners to be active participants in prayer services

3. Ensuring teacher excellence

4. Improving communications and clarifying expectations

5. Evaluation of a K-12 model

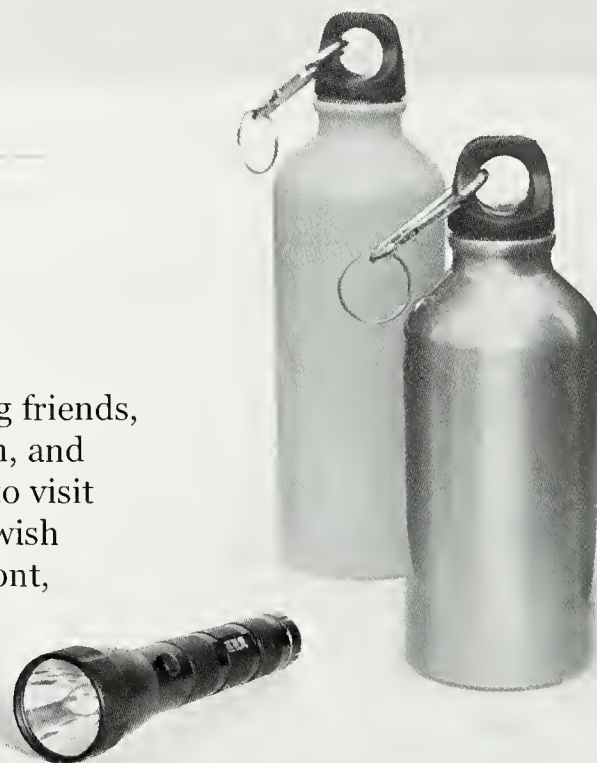

We want to thank everyone who participated in the process for their commitment to excellent Jewish education. With Jewish lifelong learning a core value of our synagogue and our Lifelong Learning Center set to open this fall, we look forward to furthering the educational vision of our program in partnership with all of our families. We are excited for fall!

Take photos of your family doing Jewish things over the summer and email them to Jennifer. We will display them during the opening week of classes!

Social Change Journey to the South

Feb 17–20, 2018 | For adults and for teens traveling with an adult

Learn about the Civil Rights Movement, the struggles of African Americans which moved our country forward, and how these challenges continue to resonate today. Led by Rabbi Neil Zuckerman and co-chairs Barry Frankel and Linda Yarden, we will journey from Atlanta to Montgomery, Selma, and Birmingham, following in the footsteps of Black and Jewish activists. We will speak with those engaged in the struggle, walk where they marched, and experience activities relevant both then and now.

Registration will open on June 5.

Questions? Please contact Rabbi Charlie Savenar at csavenar@pasyn.org.
